

First it was Blue

First it was blue

The water crisp and still,

To where you could see your reflection

Rippling at times breaking the peace

Running though my hands cold as ice

At times hot as a tormenting fire.

